

VASSILIS FILIAS
CONTRIBUTION
TO THE REDETERMINATION
OF PSYCHOLOGY
AS A HUMAN SCIENCE

CONTENTS

Introduction	17
--------------	----

PART ONE

The subject of psychology as science of the man

CHAPTER ONE

The methodological problem as a problem of essence	29
---	----

1.	General remarks	29
2.	Physiological Psychology – Behaviorism- Cognition Theory	36
3.	The School of Gestalt / Gestalt approach and holistic Psychology	51

CHAPTER TWO

Heredity and Environment	55
---------------------------------	----

1.	The elements of the problem	55
2.	The genetic data	58
3.	The significance of environment	62
4.	Individual approaches	65

CHAPTER THREE

The system of needs Definitional factors	75
---	----

1.	Primordial needs	75
2.	Secondary needs	79

3.	The evolution of human being	84
4.	Human mentality/intelligence and the unlimited of human needs	87

CHAPTER FOUR

Objectivism – Subjectivism and Psychology 95

1.	The positivist and structuralist roots of Pragmatism	95
2.	American constructivism	98
3.	French anthropological structuralism	113
4.	The existentialist-subjective approach	120

CHAPTER FIVE

Psychology between abstractionism and concretization 127

1.	Introductory remarks	127
2.	The concealed idealism into the dominant tendencies of Psychology	134
3.	The conception of “individual” and “universal” into “pragmatistic Psychology”	138

CHAPTER SIX

Regarding human nature. Steven Pinker’s approach 143

1.	The elements of the problem	143
2.	Steven Pinker’s criticism on behaviorism and related tendencies	152
3.	The cultural hermeneutics of human behavior	158
4.	Reconsidering human nature. A first approach	165
5.	Reconsidering human nature. A second approach	172

CHAPTER SEVEN

The issue of consciousness 181

1.	General remarks	181
2.	Consciousness and socialization	184
3.	Necessity and Accomodation	188
4.	Visions of universe and religions	191

CHAPTER EIGHT

Psychologization and Psychologism 203

1. Preliminaries 203
2. The social dimension of psychologism 211
3. Psychologism and History 219

PART TWO

The ambiguous fields of formation of human psychism

CHAPTER NINE

The issue of consciousness 231

1. General remarks 231
2. Structure and function of consciencious mecanism 232

CHAPTER TEN

Psychology of consciousness. Robert E. Ornstein's Aspect 243

1. Preliminaries 243
2. The "common" consiousnness 245
3. The esoteric side of consciousness 251
4. Lucien-Levy Bruhl and the "mentalité primitive" 258

CHAPTER ELEVEN

Feeling and emotion 267

1. The questions 267
2. Feelings and emotion. a critical approach 270
3. Approaches from the past 274
4. Regarding the somatic approach of the sentimental-emotive field 285
5. The cultural dimension in the theories of emotion 292
6. Notifications about the emotive stimulation and expression 295
7. The social-anthropological consideration of Pierre Bourdieu (first approach) 297

CHAPTER TWELVE

	Intelligence and Reasoning	311
1.	Introductory remarks	311
2.	What is intelligence?	314
3.	Extroversion and homogenization	321

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

	Daniel Coleman: The emotional reasoning	329
1.	General remarks	329
2.	The definition of “emotional reasoning” Conceptual indeterminations and confusions	336
3.	The problematic of emotional activation. Errors and unilateral approaches	350
4.	The technique of emotional manipulation. Final conclusions	358

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

	The issue of massification	363
1.	General remarks	363
2.	The theoretical approaches of the massification phenomenon	371
3.	The media as the massification factors	374
4.	The social background of massification	379
5.	The dynamic of groups (Gruppdynamics). The other aspect	383

PART THREE

The Praxeological consideration of psychic becoming

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

	The praxeology of Marx	395
1.	Preliminaries	395
2.	Aspects of marxistic praxeological consideration	397
	a) Man and nature	397
	b) Man and society	404

c) Liberty and necessity	410
--------------------------	-----

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

The conceptual content of human praxis according to Max Weber	417
a) Man and History	417
b) The conceptual contents	424
c) Man and Economy	429

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

The praxeological theory of Pierre Bourdieu (second approach)	433
1. The theoretical framework	433
a) Social practice and addiction (habitus)	434
2. The concept of “Capital” according to Bourdieu	440

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

Between pragmatism and idealism: The structuralistic theory of Parsons	447
1. Preliminaries	447
2. The scientific origins of the structuralistic approach	448

CHAPTER NINETEEN

“The cognitive revolution”. An effort of redetermine Psychology	463
1. Preliminaries	463
2. Information and meaning	468
3. The domain of meaning	471

PART FOUR About Freud and psychoanalysis

CHAPTER TWENTY

The psychoanalytical aproach to the emotional behavior	479
---	-----

1.	General remarks	479
2.	About classical Psychology and Behaviorism	487
3.	The Freudian Revolution	493
4.	Critics on Freud and psychoanalysis	498
5.	Conclusions	507

CHAPTER TWENTY ONE

	Human psychism according Freud and Marx	519
1.	Introductory remarks	519
2.	The Freudian anthropology	523
3.	The anthropology of Marx	530
4.	Freud and Marx: a comparative aproach	536
5.	The attempt to identify Marx and Freud – an erroneous undertaking	547

CHAPTER TWENTY TWO

	The antipsychiatric approach	551
1.	General remarks	551
2.	Tomas Szasz: The madness as a means of socio-ideological control	561
3.	Antipsychiatry, Freud, Pragmatistic psychology	569

CHAPTER TWENTY THREE

	As Epilogue	573
	Bibliography in Use	585
	Index of names	601