

VASSILIS FILIAS

SOCIOLOGY OF CIVILIZATION

THIRD VOLUME

The decay of bourgeois civilization and the crisis of nowadays society

CONTENTS

FIRST PART

The constitutive elements of the bourgeois civilization	13-233
A' Unit: An approach to the "genetics" of the bourgeois civilization	15-50
Introductory remarks	17-19
I. The emersion of the bourgeois worldview and its starting elements	21-32
II. Human image in the bourgeois conception of the world	33-40
III. The humanistic origins of the bourgeois view of the world	41-50
B' Unit: The contradicting specifications of the bourgeois view	52-168
Introductory remarks	53-58
I. The humanistic level	59-77
II. The financial level	79-91
III. The social level	93-102
IV. The political level	103-127
1. The bourgeois conception of Democracy	105-117
2. The open society and the principle of publicity	117-127
V. The law and the system of juridical protections of society and man	129-147
VI. Conclusions	149-168
C' Unit: Liberalism and Democracy in the phase of capitalistic rise	169-233
I. Liberalism as way of living and the "pluralistic" conception in the rise of capitalist society	171-183
II. The bourgeois parliamentary system and the function of Democracy	185-204
1. The powers distinction: Theory and praxis	187-189
2. The morphological characteristics of mass Democracy	190-195
3. The definitive dominance of the executive power	195-204
III. The medieval city	207-210
IV. The city in the 17 th and 18 th centuries	211-226
Rousseau critics on the urban megalopolis of the 18 th century	226-233

SECOND PART

The contradictory developments on the course of the bourgeois-capitalist system (19th and the first half of the 20th century)	235-244
D' Unit: The genetic determinants of modern world's crisis	237-244
Introductory remarks and details	237-244
I. The given aspects of the crisis	245-278
1. The economic dimension	247-264
2. The political dimension	265-278
II. The interpretative approaches of the crisis	279-376
1. The positivist view.	281-297
2. The radical view	297-312
3. The gramscian view	313-321
4. The fascist "solution"	322-340
5. The crisis as "divergence" (Talkot Parsons–Robert Merton)	340-350
6. The crisis as the result of submission of the individual by the collective (Carl Popper)	350-366
7. The "disideologization" as a means of overcoming the crisis (Daniel Bell)	366-376

THIRD PART

The decay facts of the modern civilization	377-514
E' Unit: Aspects of the decline of modern civilization	379-514
I. The "privatization" of social life in the 19th and 20th century	381-405
II. "Consenting" tolerance and pluralistic Democracy	407-430
III. The economic neoliberalism and the modern capitalist reality	431-463
• Introduction	433-434
• The developments within the capitalist economies	434-463
IV. Globalisation and the New Order	465-493
The globalizing flood: Conclusions	489-493
V. The Mass Media and the antidemocratic invasion	495-514
• Instead of an epilogue	515-518
Bibliography	519-525