

VASSILIS FILIAS

SCIOLOGY OF CIVILIZATION

SECOND VOLUME

The Fronts of Theoretical Controversies

CONTENTS

FIRST PART

The progressive formation of the Sociology of Civilization in the germanophone area	13-343
A. Unit: The precursors: Nietzsche and Marx	15-120
I. Friedrich Nietzsche (1844-1900) and the transvaluation of all values	17-57
II. Karl Marx (1818-1883) and the historicity of the civilization	33-40
B. Unit: The German founders of the Sociology of civilization: Max Weber and Georg Simmel	59-121-216
I. Max Weber (1864-1920) and the cultural conception of History	123-178
II. Georg Simmel (1858-1918) and the “logic of things” in modern civilization	179-216
C. Unit: The theoretical debates in the germanophone domain: E. Troeltsch, M. Scheler, K. Manheim, W. Sombart	217-343
I. Ernst Troeltsch (1865-1923) and the deistic approach of History	219-246
II. Max Scheler (1874-1928) and the approach of civilization through the sociology of knowledge	247-272
III. Karl Manheim (1893-1947) and the time-space binding of civilization	273-303
IV. Werner Sombart (1863-1941) and the interpretation of civilization in terms of Political Economy	305-343

SECOND PART

The constitution of the french sociology of civilization	345-416
D. Unit: Controversies and convergences: Emil Durkheim and Lucien Lévy-Bruhl	347-416
I. Emil Durkheim (1858-1917) and the holistic approach of civilization	349-386
II. Lucien Lévy-Bruhl (1857-1939) and the primitive mentality	387-416

THIRD PART

Later-developments and worldwide interactions	417-517
E. Unit: The American approaches: Tallycot Parsons and Behaviorism	419-467
I. Tallycot Parsons, 1854-1931 and the structure of social action	421-445
II. Behaviorism and the mechanistic “interpretation” of civilization	447-467
F. Unit: The continuators of the School of Leipzig and conception of the civilization as a way of living:	469-492
- Hans Freyer, 1887-1969
- Joackim Wach, 1898-1995
- Arnold Gehlen, 1904-1976
G. Unit: Post-modernism and the “experiential” conception of the modern civilization	493-517
Bibliography	519-562